The Charter Township of Bloomfield is home to 41,000 people.

Its 26 square miles are distinguished by rolling hills, winding roads and scenic lakes and streams.

Bloomfield Township is within easy reach of the area's major thoroughfares and expressways.

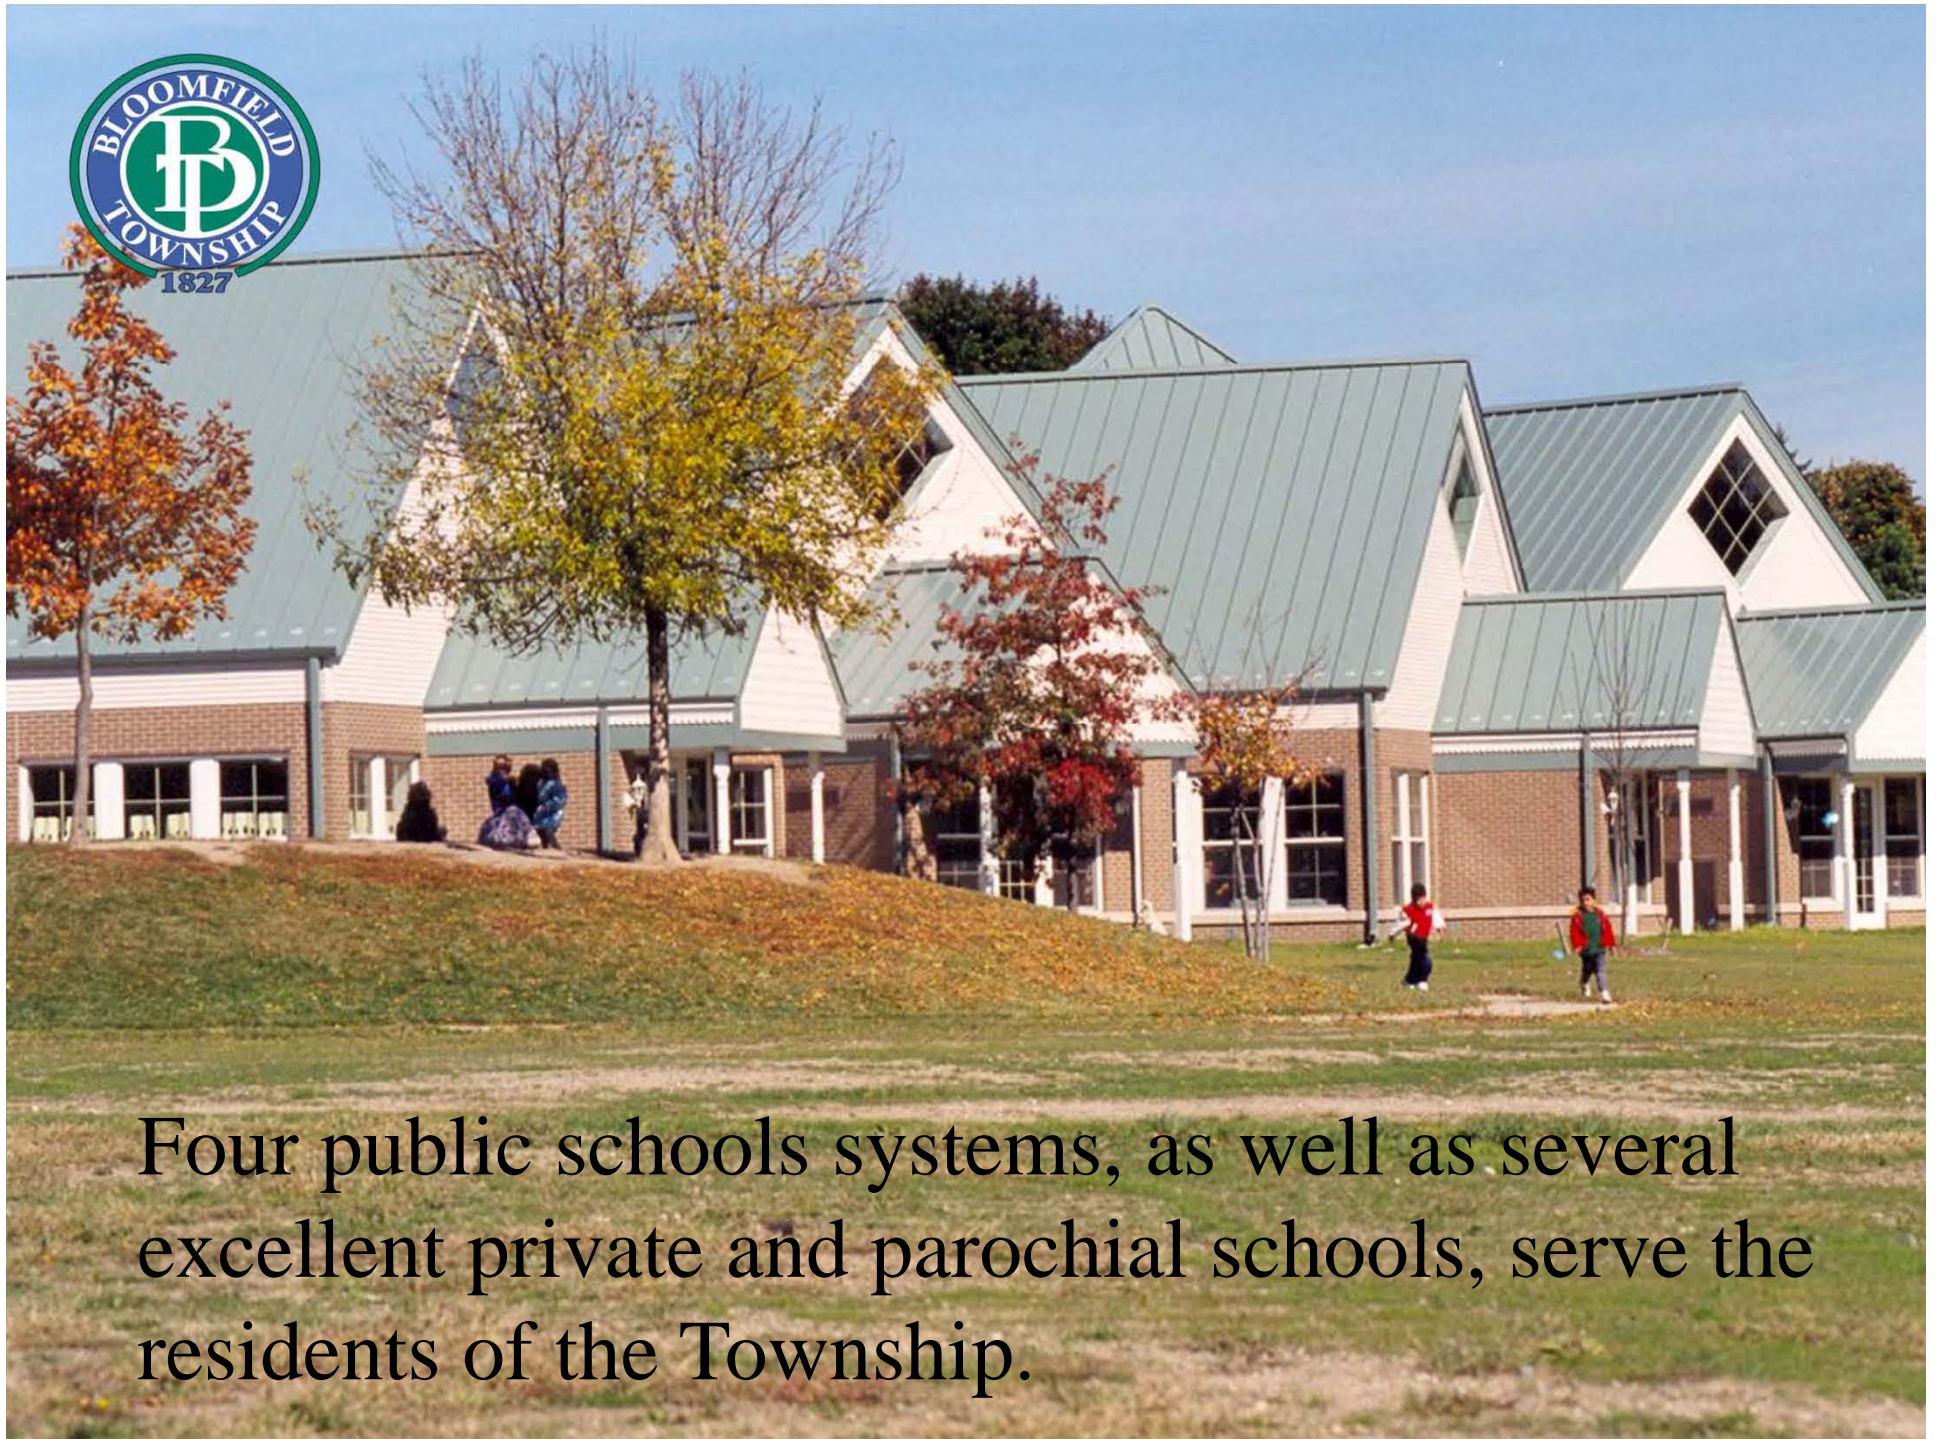

It provides a full range of public services, including its own police and full-time fire departments, and road, water and sewer divisions.

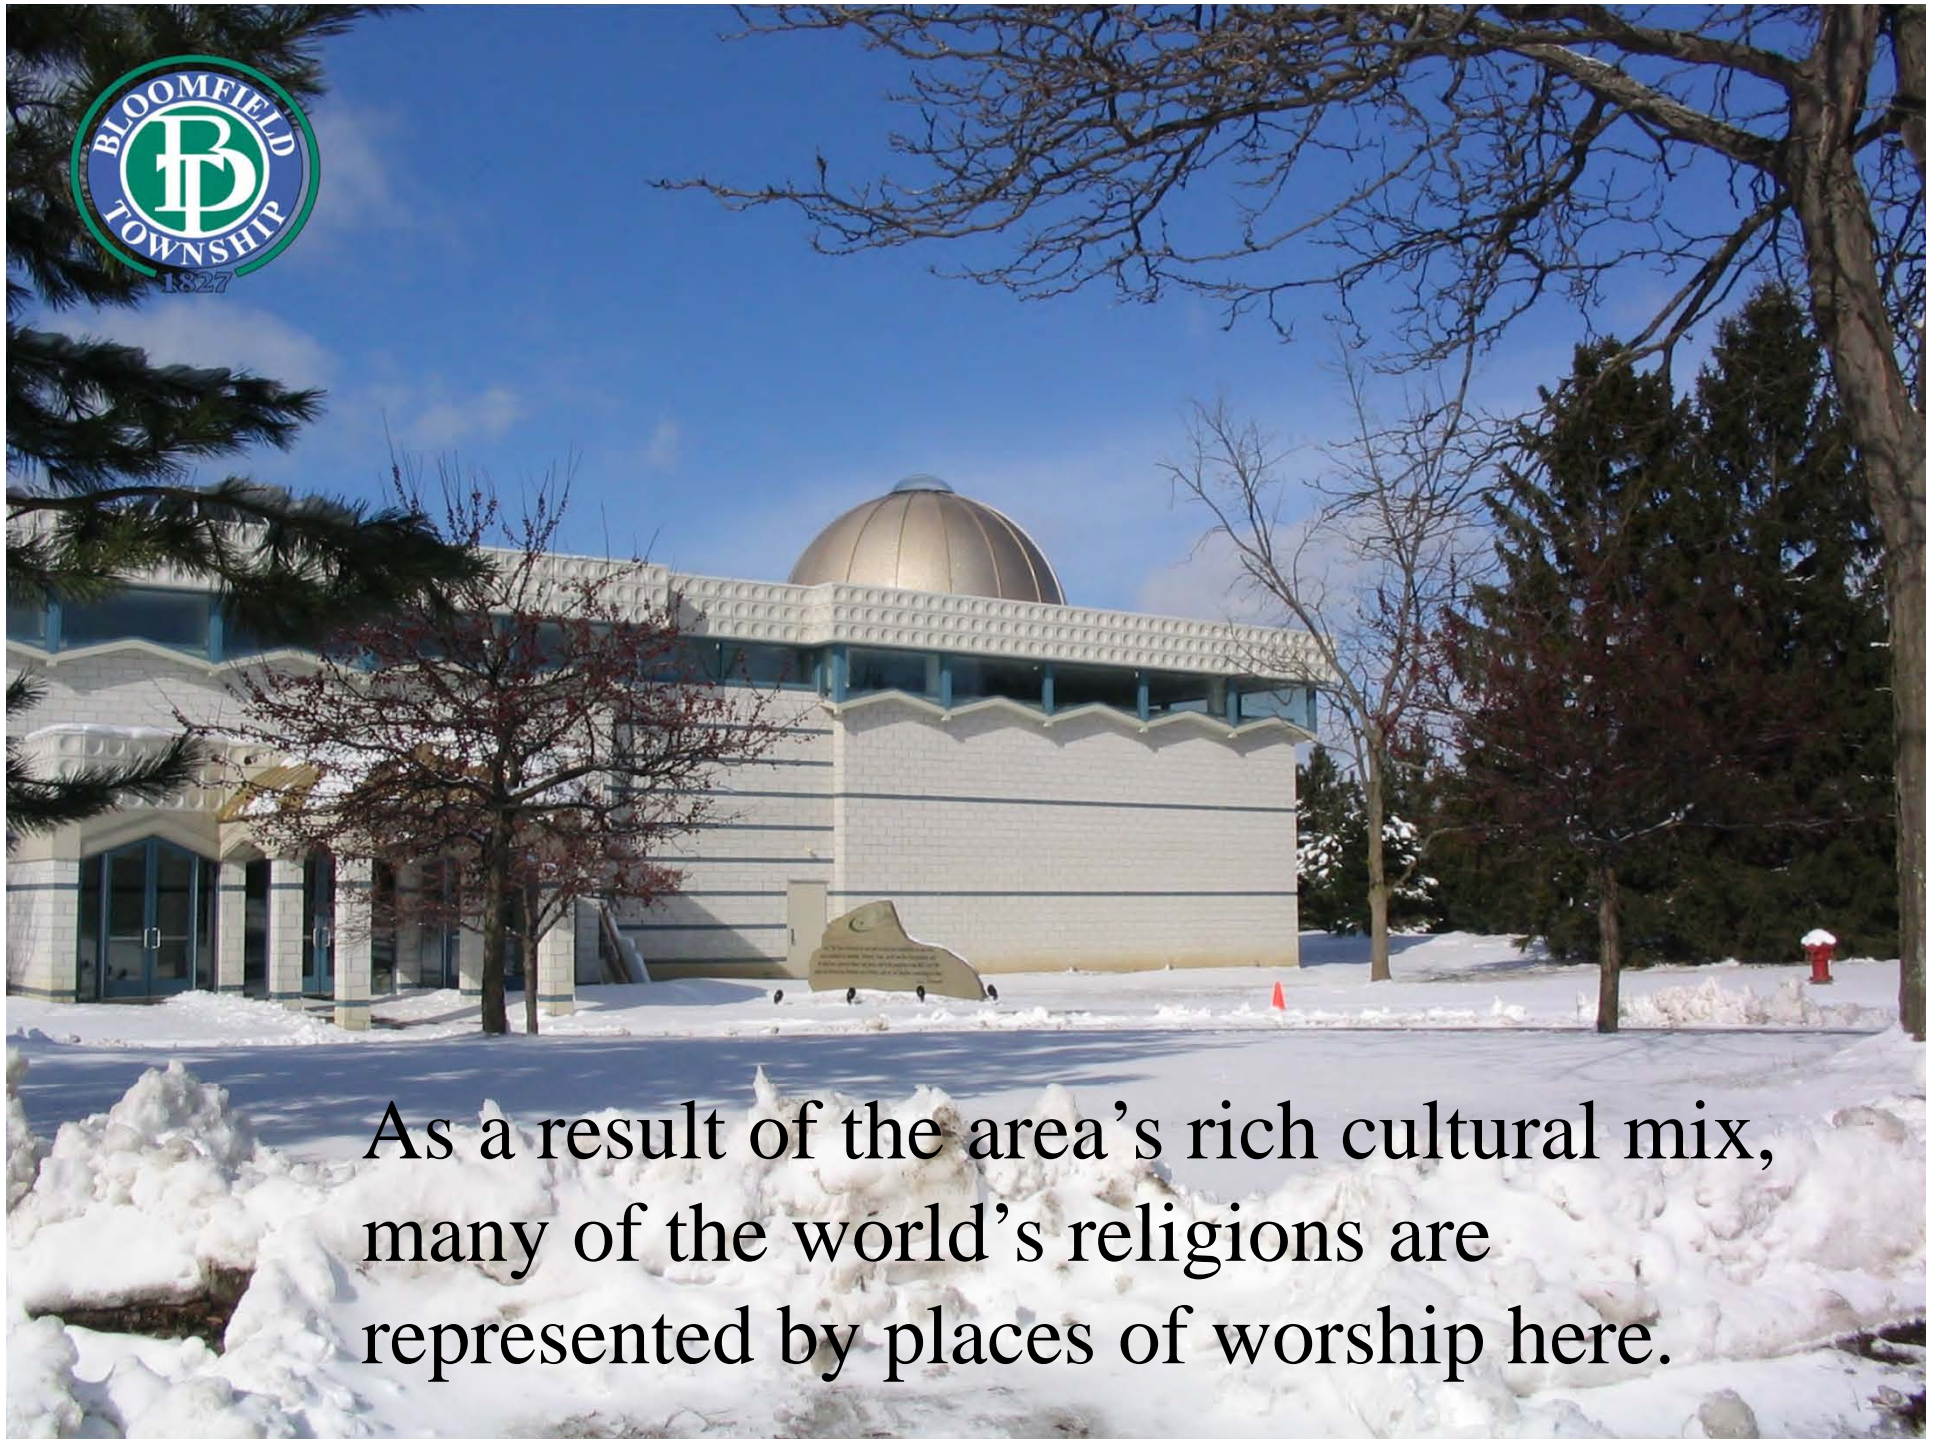

Housing choices in Bloomfield Township range from magnificent estates on large lots to affordable homes for first-time buyers.

The population is diverse and exceptionally well educated.

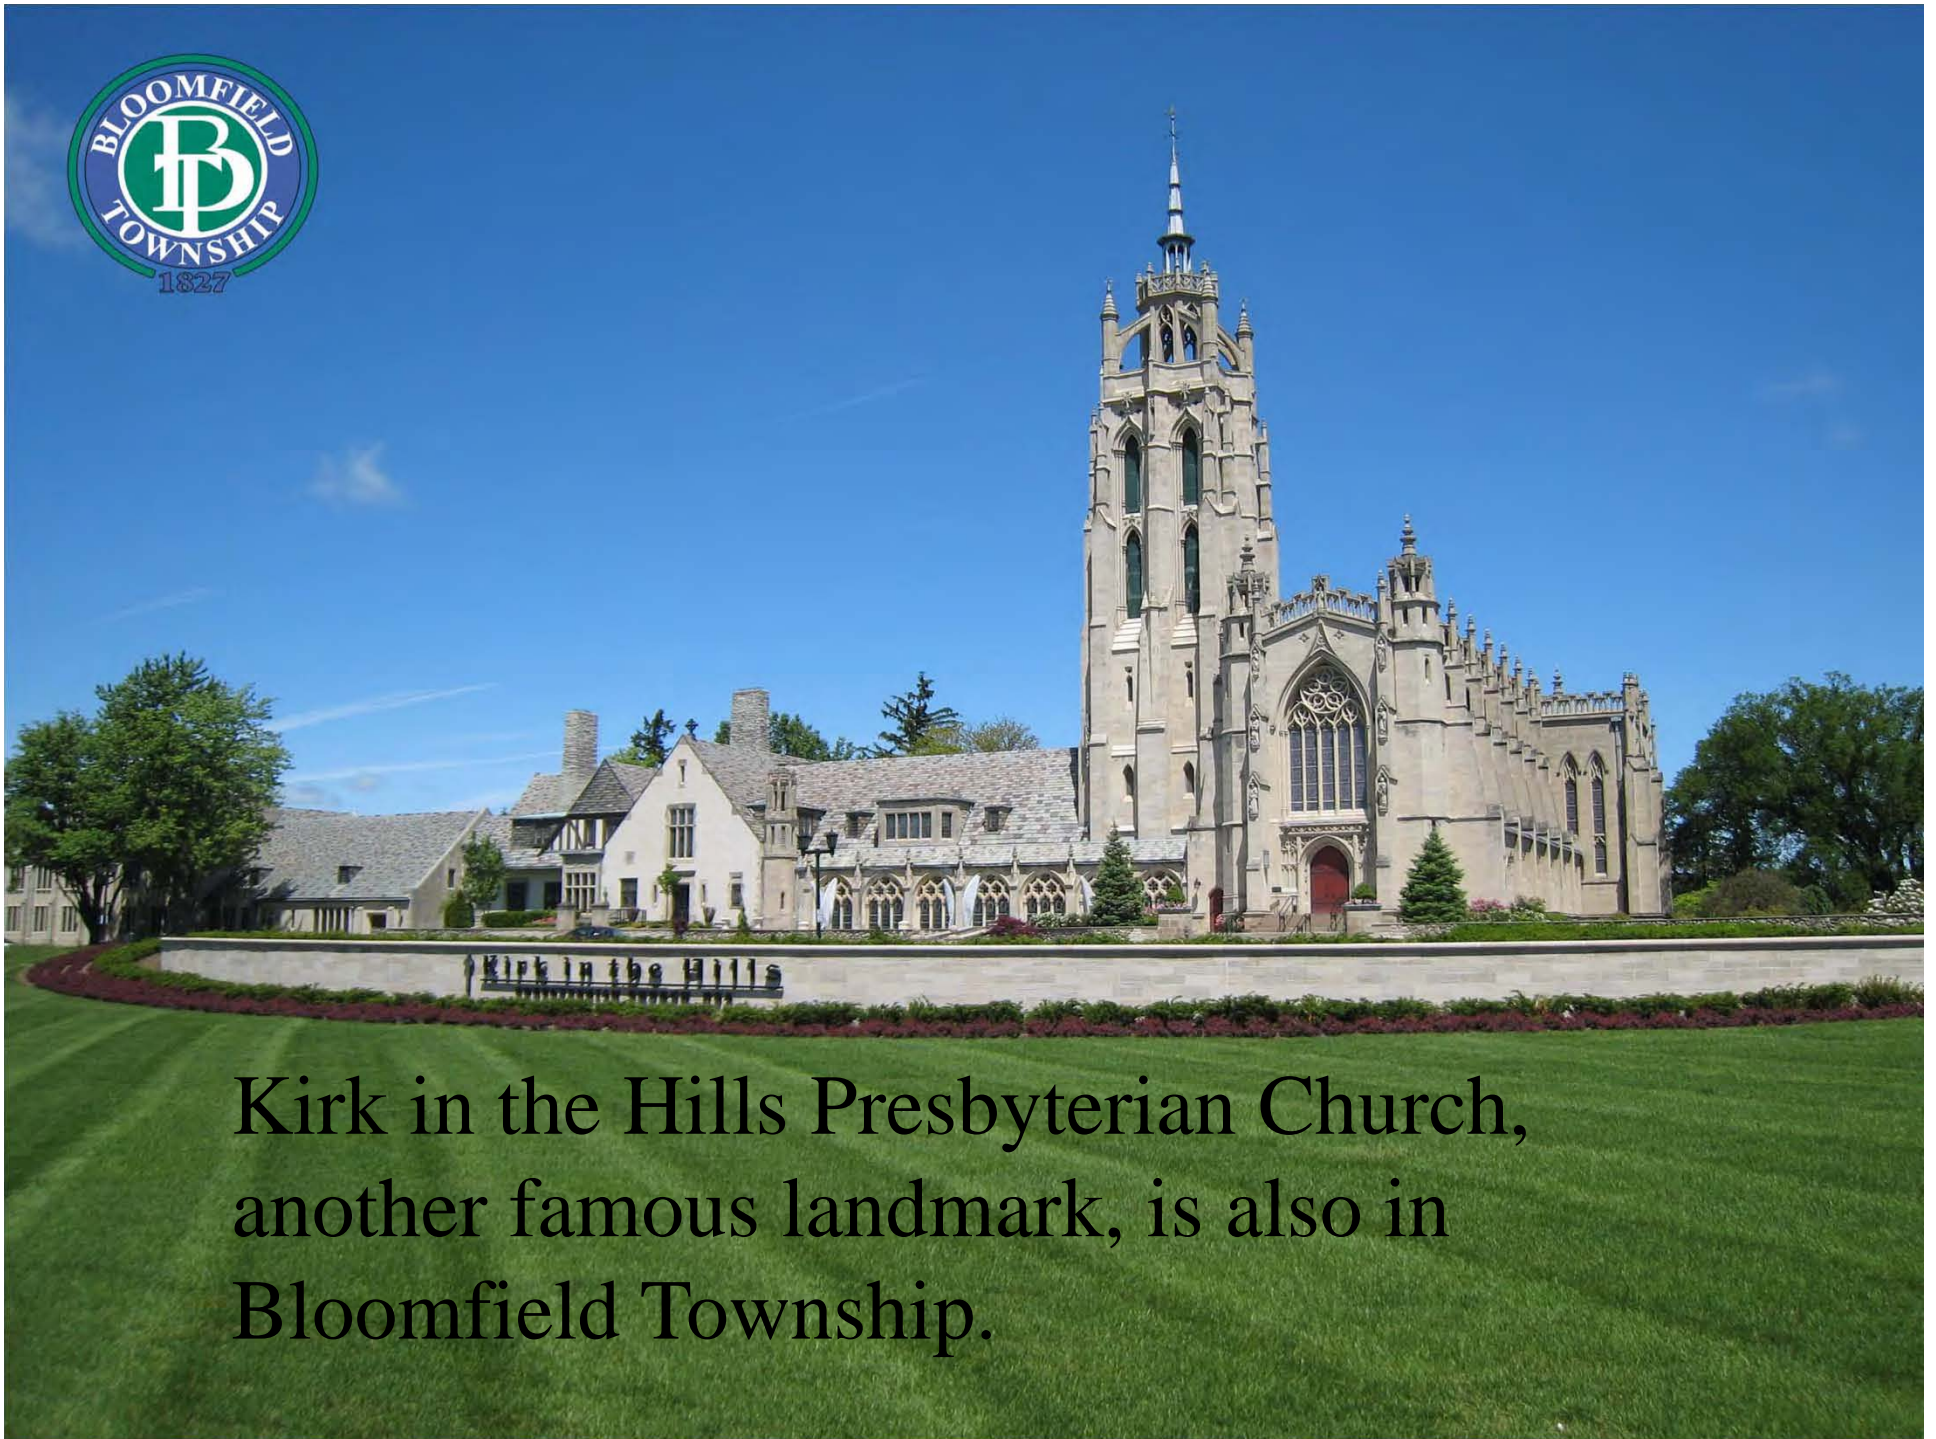

Four public schools systems, as well as several excellent private and parochial schools, serve the residents of the Township.

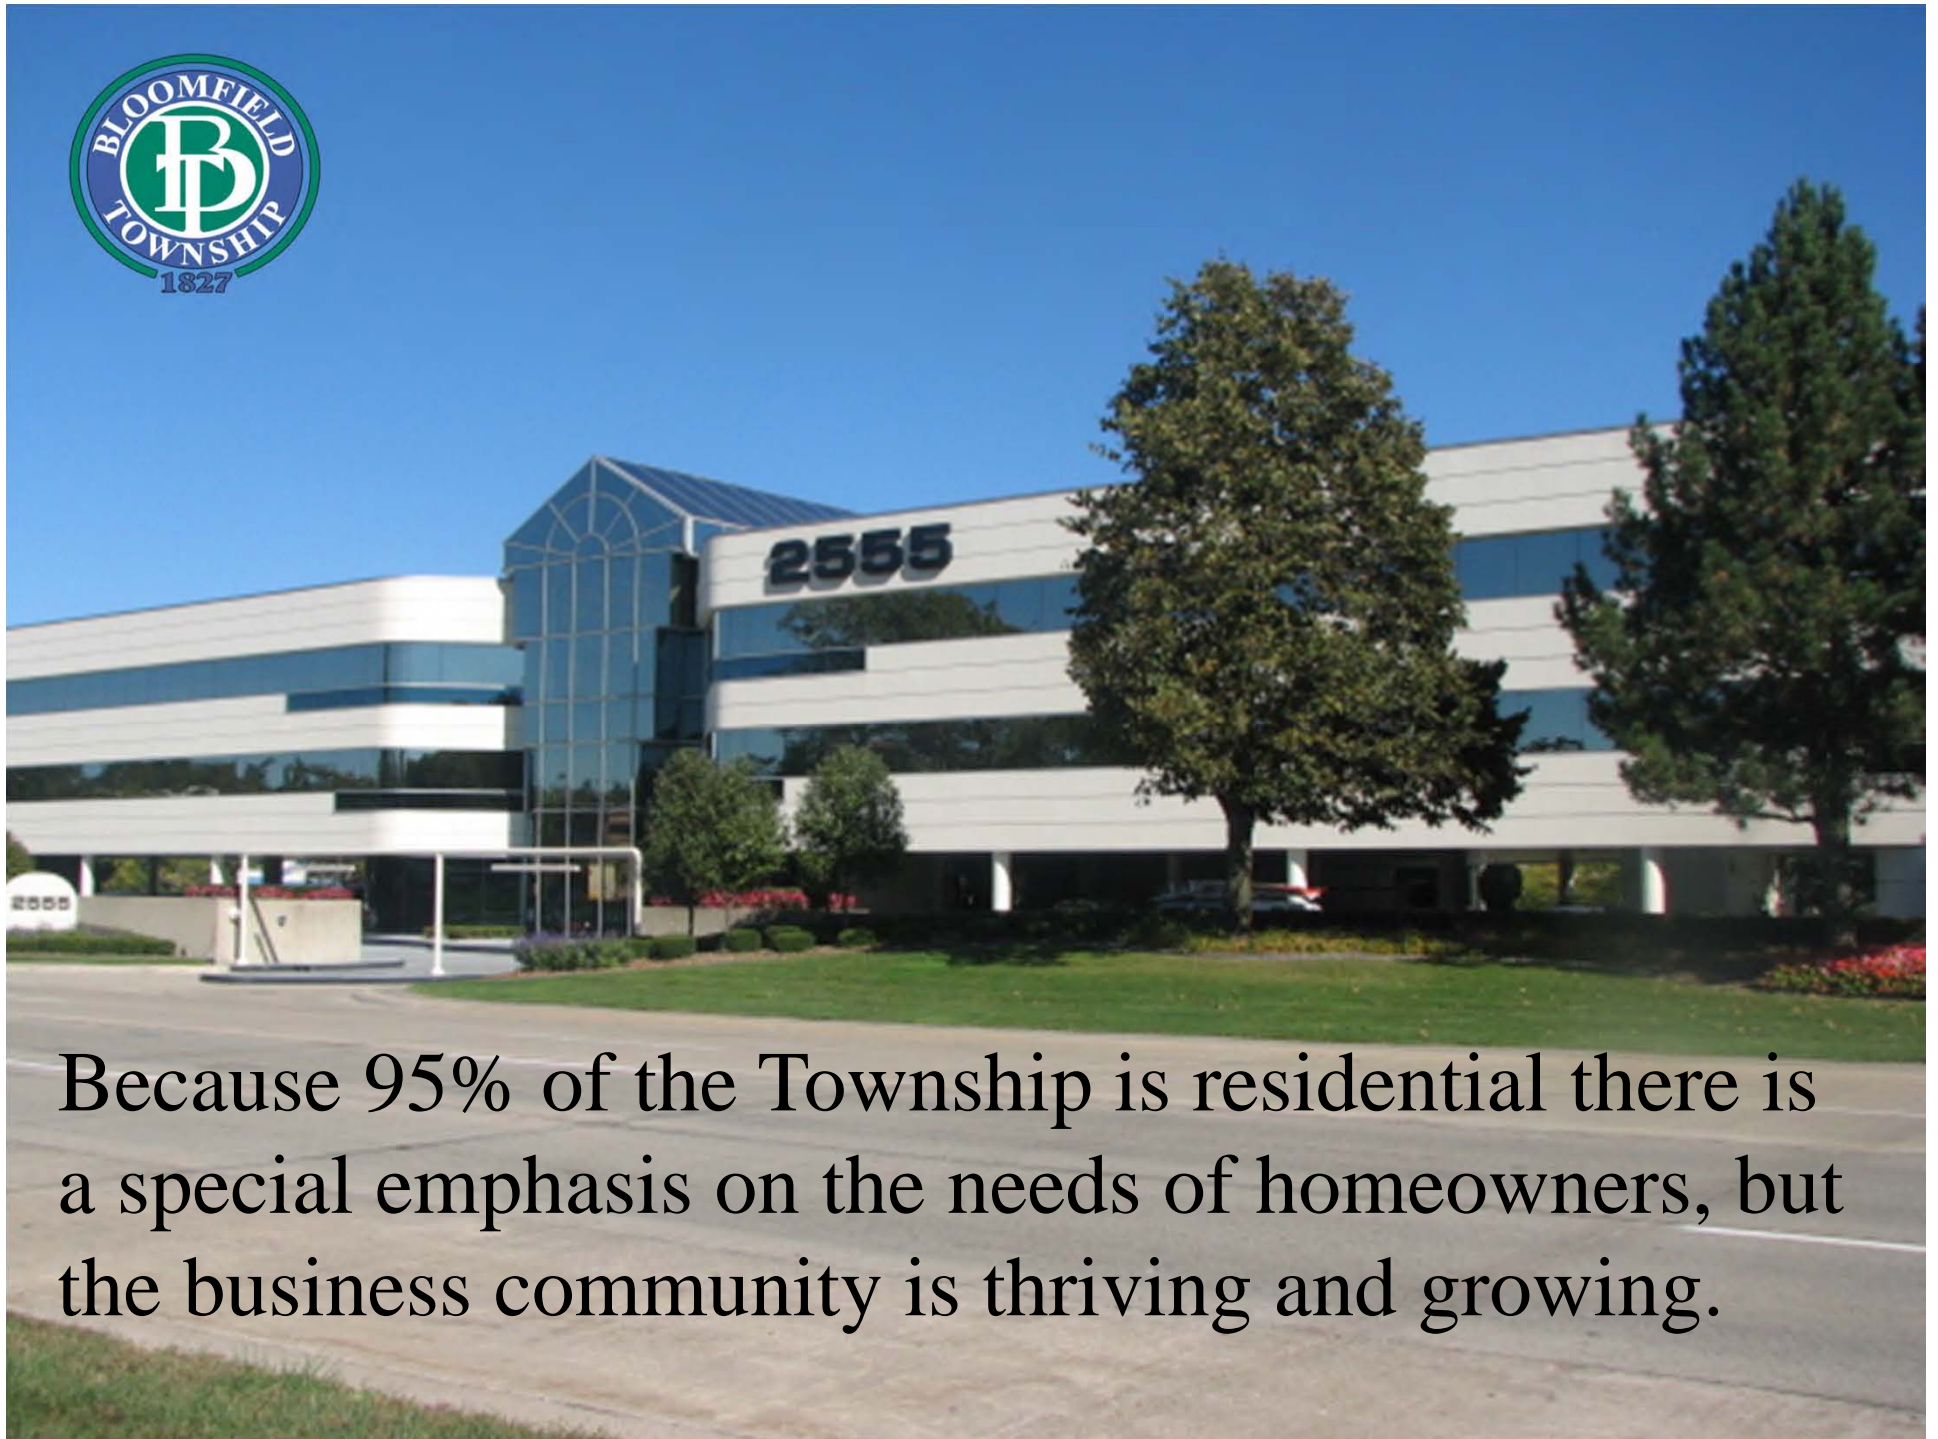

As a result of the area's rich cultural mix, many of the world's religions are represented by places of worship here.

Oakland Hills Country Club, host of the 2004 Ryder Cup and 2008 PGA Championship, is in the Township.

Kirk in the Hills Presbyterian Church, another famous landmark, is also in Bloomfield Township.

Because 95% of the Township is residential there is a special emphasis on the needs of homeowners, but the business community is thriving and growing.

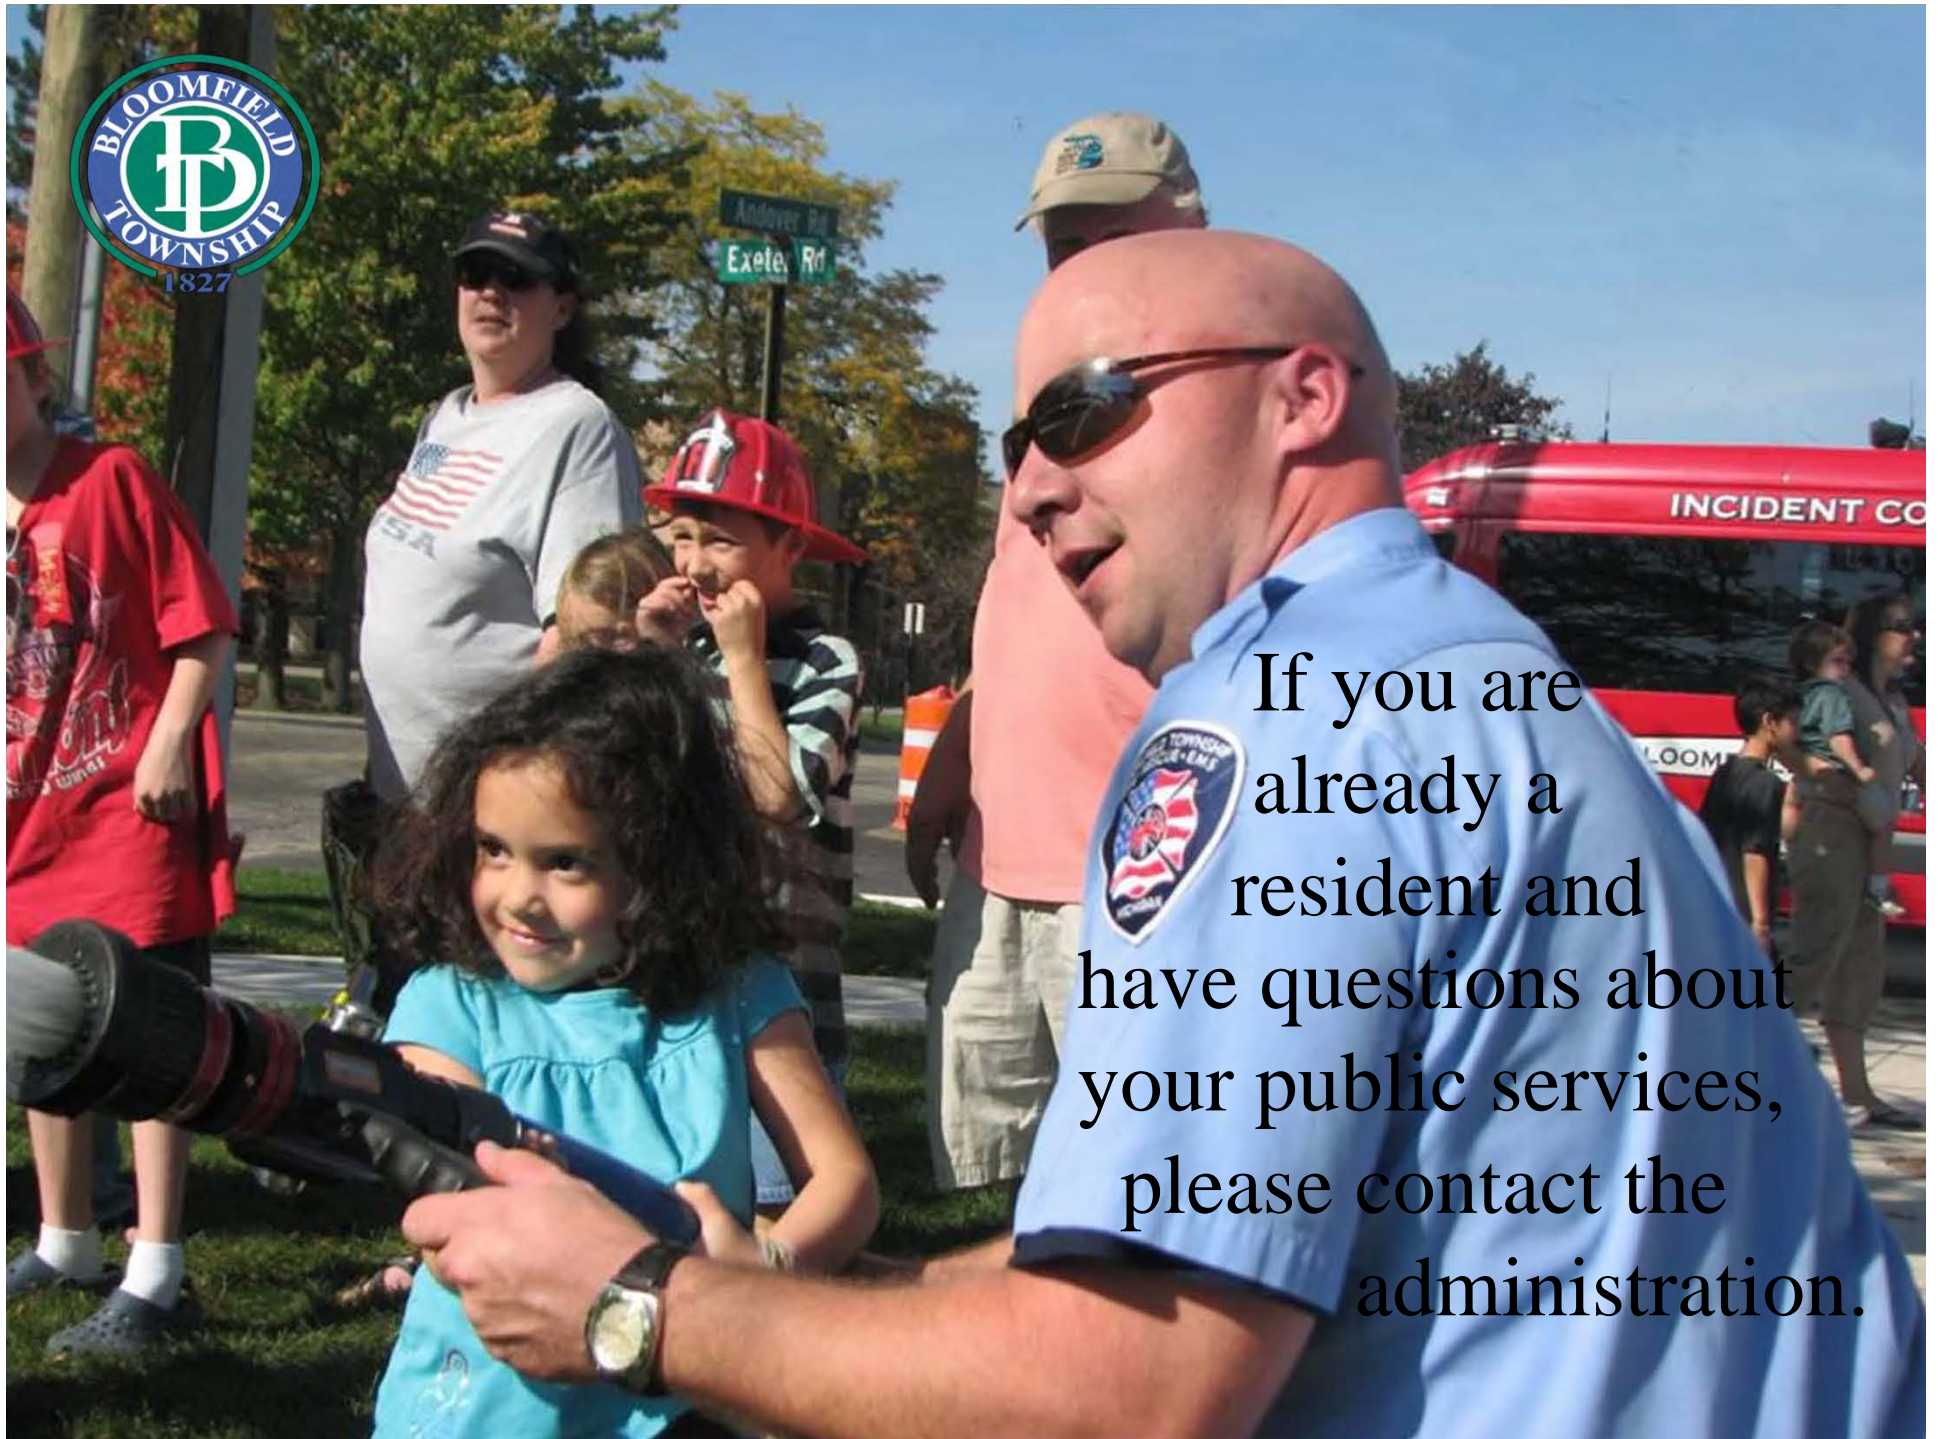

Bloomfield Township faces the same financial challenges other communities are facing but has developed a five-year strategic plan to manage the situation.

Standard & Poor's recently noted the Township's strong record of good management when it upgraded its bond rating to AAA, the highest rating a municipality or even a corporation can achieve.

If you are already a resident and have questions about your public services, please contact the administration.

If you are considering moving into the Township, we would be happy to give you more information about the community. We are sure you will be pleased.
